

Dojo Technology Spends Independence Day Processing Half Million Pages

July 7, 2002

Dojo Technology put the “always open, always working” philosophy to the test over the holiday weekend by accepting a last minute high-volume email job.

“The amazing part of this job wasn’t so much the task itself,” says Dojo Technology founder and partner Ed Hamilton, “but the turn-around time we met.” Meeting the deadline, Dojo extracted, branded and delivered the images for a Tuesday morning review by in-house and outside counsel. A rolling delivery of the last 100,000 pages throughout the day completed the project on-time.

Mr. Hamilton continues, “The critical aspect from our client’s perspective was providing documents for review on Tuesday morning when they had lawyers scheduled. We met that deadline.”
