

Dojo Technology hired by International Law Firm for Foreign Language Conversion

May 6, 2004

Dojo is pleased to announce they have been selected by the Tokyo office of a large international law firm to provide data conversion services on behalf of their client. The document population is comprised of servers, custodian files and individual files from a variety of the client offices throughout Southeast Asia.

“This client acquisition is a very exciting one for Dojo,” says Ed Hamilton, President of Dojo Technology. “Dojo has developed an effective, efficient tool to process foreign language characters and our success in acquiring this client demonstrates the effectiveness of those tools.”

The volume of work is expected to provide Dojo with a steady work flow through the end of 2004. “From this we intend to market the success of this client acquisition into a testimony of our abilities in foreign language conversion,” Mr. Hamilton concluded.
